Call for Projects Digital Culture

Interdisciplinary Cooperation Projects New Media

In accordance with the message on culture for the period 2012-2015, various federal institutions have set themselves the joint target of exploring the impact of digitalisation on cultural production, outreach and reception.

With its call for «Interdisciplinary Cooperation Projects New Media», Pro Helvetia is promoting both creative artistic work in the new media and technologies area and cooperation among cultural institutions from different disciplines.

Conditions

Projects submitted must deal in an artistic fashion with new media and technologies or their social and cultural impact. Each project is to be co-produced by at least two partners (event organiser, arts or research institution, producer). Preference is given to co-productions that involve various disciplines and try out new formats. The project partners must be resident in Switzerland. The project takes place in form of a public presentation or exhibition in Switzerland at the latest until summer 2015.

Not admissible are purely video or audiovisual productions, documentary projects, archives and data bases, and commercial projects.

Submission and decision

The complete project dossier is to be submitted via www.myprohelvetia.ch by 1 December 2013.

A complete dossier includes:

- description of the cultural project incl. time plan for the realisation and presentation of the project;
- description of and motivation behind the cooperation;
- documentation of the participating persons;
- details of the venues;
- budget and funding plan.

All projects submitted will be assessed by Pro Helvetia's head office. The final selection will be made by an independent and interdisciplinary jury.

Pro Helvetia will assume 80% of any third-party funding required for the project up to an amount of CHF 100,000 at most.
